The British Baseball Federation have signed a sponsorship contract with First Base International worth £165,000.

This sponsorship will focus on key growth areas within the structure of the BBF which include stadia, merchandising and in the main, youth.

The Youth Programme will initially run alongside the existing SDO system. In the summer term, ten full time coaches will be employed to work for a six week period in 50 schools throughout the UK. In the second six weeks of the summer term, the same ten coaches will move on to another 50 schools. This programme is an extension of the pilot programme which was used by First Base International as a fact finding study in the summer of 1994. The estimates based on the experience gained through the 94 season project figures in the region of 25,000 children playing baseball through this scheme in the first year.

First Base International will also supply the equipment for the coaches to work with in the schools. They have also made available a five figure sum for the initial development of a stadium in the UK. This stadium is likely to be in the London area and will serve as the future UK venue for all the major European competitions and tournaments.

First Base International have included a trading agreement within the sponsorship contract linked to turnover which will mean that the BBF and FBI will grow together. Through the scheme, BBF Members will have access to equipment at very reduced prices. They are also making available office space for the BBF in London for the next five years.

The contract commenced on the 1st January and will run for five years during which we expect to see major growth in Baseball throughout the UK.

CONGRATULATIONS El Presidente

At the CEB Annual Congress held in Haarlem, Netherlands on 4 February 1995, Great Britain were successful with their bid to host the 1996 European Championships B Pool. This was very closely fought match between Great Britain and another excellent bid by the Czech Republic. For Great Britain to win is a great honour, and we must now start planning to ensure this is the biggest and best European baseball tournament yet.

The draw for the 1995 European tournaments was also conducted at this meeting. The BBF will be represented in three tournaments this summer, details of which are as follows:

European B Cup

To be held in Leksand, Sweden from 13 - 18 June

1995 with Humberside Mets representing Great Britain

CEB B Cup

To be held in Borgerhout, Belgium from 13 - 18 June 1995 with Birmingham Braves representing Great Britain

Junior B Pool

To be held in Vienna from 6 - 13 August 1995 with the Great Britain Junior Squad competing.

And more good news. CEB (Confederation of European Baseball) have expanded their Board by two new members. Three people were nominated to stand, Steve Herbert from Great Britain, Martin Miller from Germany, and a Slovenian candidate. In a very close vote Steve Herbert and Martin Miller were elected on to the Board. This is excellent news for Great Britain and recognises the strong support and respect that British Baseball receives in Europe

CEB now represents 34 countries in Europe, the newest of which is Israel. This means that CEB now has the most powerful baseball voice in the world, which can only mean good news and a bright future for baseball.

Thanks must go to the Netherlands and the CEB Technical Committee for the work they did in organising the congress, and to Easton for the generous donation of a bat for each team competing in this year's European competitions.

PERFECT!

This year's Major League Baseball/British Baseball Federation Coaching Clinic took place at Cranfield University in Bedfordshire on 20-22 January and once again proved to be a success. Over the past two years, the BBF has faced criticism over the facilities at USIU-E in Bushey and once again listened to what the attendees wanted. The result. Perfection! As you will see on the letters page, people have already put pen to paper and this was because of the most experienced clinicians that have been here to date and because of the facilities at Cranfield.

Already, the BBF are working on how to improve next year's clinic and in next month's issue we will have some news on how to make sure you can attend the Cranfield Clinic next year. May I take the opportunity to thank everyone who attended who made the clinic a success and for everyone who helped behind the scenes. Remember to tell everyone what they missed this year so that we can increase the attendance next year.

On the Saturday night, we had the inaugural BBF Dinner which will now become an Annual event and presented a number of coaching awards which were very kindly donated by Boothferry Trophies of Hull. Nigel Moss from Leeds City Royals picked up Junior Coach of the Year, Frank Parker of Humberside Mets won the Coach of the Year, Phil Chesterton of Essex Arrows won Manager of the Year, Bob Gray won the BBF Coaching Achievement Award and Barry Marshall won the BBF Coaching Development Award.

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL
INTERNATIONAL

Ray Brownlie of Humberside Mets picked up the Benson Majestic Golden Glove Award, Steve Sewell of Nottingham Homets the Sonny Goings Pitching Award and Lee Mayfield of Hounslow Baseball Club, the Gridiron Sports Batting Award.

The food was excellent and the raffle and auction that took place afterwards was a great success and lasted for an hour because of the vast amount of prizes we had to give away. As usual I was out and about with my dictaphone and managed to pose a few questions to our guests. So for those of you that couldn't make it, you really missed out this year but hey, enjoy the interview.

Herm Schneider - Chicago White Sox Trainer

You spent time with the Yankees in 77 and 78 and have spent going into seventeen years with the White Sox. What was it like working with Billy Martin and George Steinbrenner?

It was a good experience for me being a young trainer coming up in baseball because it taught me to do everything correctly so that meant that I had to think and plan things out. I think today that those days made me a better trainer.

How do the facilities at the new park compare to the old one?

I had the opportunity to design it myself. They gave me the pleasure and the luxury of taking three years to think what I wanted and I kept making different plans and setting it up different. When I moved into the actual place I felt like I had been there before because it was exactly the way I planned it out. Functionally, there is no place better in the States to work in my area.

What is Bo Jackson like as a professional and a person?

British Baseball Federation

Bo has become an excellent friend of mine. Professionally, he really paid a dear price to come back and play baseball. He worked very hard and made a lot of sacrifices, gave almost four years of his life to rehabilitate.

Do you think that Michael Jordan should be with the Barons or is it just a publicity stunt and once again what is he like as a player and a professional?

Michael really loves the game of baseball. I think he always has loved it. I think what happened was as he was growing up, Michael had a growth spurt and he got tall real quick and he was pretty good at basketball so people said wow this guy is really great. So they kept pushing him basketball wise but in his heart he always had a passion for baseball and he kind of looks back on his day growing where he didn't play enough baseball as a kid. He didn't play enough baseball in North Carolina whereas Bo played at Auburn Michael has lost a passion for competitive basketball because he has accomplished everything and he has this burning desire inside of him to pursue a baseball life and that is why he is doing right now.

There has been some comment about the fact that he might go back to basketball. Is he staying with baseball?

You can count on this he is not going back to basketball. I think he is going to stay with baseball until he succeeds or he falls flat on his face. If he can do it he is not the type of guy who wants to embarrass himself. He's 250 or something in Birmingham, year out of playing in AA ball. He's treading water and he is getting better. Sure it is going to take two or three years to see if he can really play game of baseball.

How difficult is it keeping the players fit?

It is difficult but it is easier than it used to be because players nowadays don't have to have other jobs and all they have to think about is taking care of themselves. All they need is direction, a programme and they take those two things and put them together and they work.

You have some big guys on your team do they struggle to keep their weight down?

During the season it is a bit of a struggle because the life of baseball is very demanding. We play many games and our hours are very late. We don't usually finish a game until 11.30pm and the fellas are hungry sometimes. Their habits are not the best things for us. But once they see their weight getting a little bit up, they watch it and bring it back down again.

What part did you play in helping Michael and Bo gain fitness ready to play?

Well with Bo it was basically all my doing getting him ready to play baseball again. With Michael, our owner asked me if I would do him a favour. I said, "Your the owner I'll do anything you want". He said, "It's over and above the call of duty", and I said "for you I'll do it". I said, "What is it?" He said, "Well it is a big project". I said, "Just tell me what it is". He said, "I want you to get Michael Jordan ready to play baseball". I said "When do you want me to do this?", he says, "Tomorrow." So we started and Michael and I worked together for maybe three or four months and I got Michael ready to play baseball. Not that he isn't a good athlete but he wasn't strong enough to play baseball in the shoulders, hands, and elbows. His wind was fine because that's what basketball is is running all the time.

Which players that you have been involved with have been your favourite players to work with?

Thuman Munson when I was with the Yankees, Catfish Hunter, Richard Dobson who was with the White Sox, Greg Walker, Greg Luzinski. I have a slew of them who I have really enjoyed.

What is the funniest thing that has happened to you in baseball?

Getting thrown out of a ball game.

As a trainer?!

Yep!

What have been the high points and low points of your career?

Losing the play-offs in 1993 was a low

What made you decide to become a trainer?

I really liked it and I started working in the ballpark in Rochester where I grew up and I was watching the trainer who was there and I started paying attention.

Joe Maddon - California Angels Hitting Instructor

What are your views on the strike?

It is very unfortunate and I felt from the beginning that it was going to be a long process. I still don't think it is going to end very quickly and there is likely to be a lot of animosity resulting from this. It is such uncharted territory. My view on the strike is that is really unfortunate and it has taken a lot of fun out of what we do. Hopefully this will be the last time that something like this happens. My biggest concern is that when it is over that they build something into it so that something like this can not happen again.

What effect do you think, apart from financially, the strike will have on the game?

That is a very good question. It will have an immediate impact in the sense that if there are replacement players then this might effect the standard of play. Whether or not the fans will except replacement players is interesting; I think that the fans will just want to see baseball.

Which players that you have been involved with have been your favourite players to work with?

All of them. Looking at the Angels right now I have had a lot of involvement with Tim Salmon, Chad Curtis, Jimmy Edmonds, Garry Di Sarcina, JT Snow, and Wally Joyner in the past. Favourites? I would have to list among my favourites Chad Curtis because he is an absolute over achiever, this is a guy who was told from the get go that he was not big enough and lacked certain qualities to play Major League Baseball. His personality and work ethic are a credit to where he is today.

How has today's game changed from when you played?

I think one of the biggest differences is that now players need to know why. When I played we didn't need to know why we just did what the coach asked.

What is the best piece of advice you would give to players or managers starting out?

If you could develop the ability to scout players then you can break players down to their grass roots, in terms of all their physical talents, and be able to correct any fundamentals.

Who do you admire most and why?

Among the managers at the moment, I'd have to do and that is work on his weakness. He is an outstanding elder, people knew that, and I think Jim Leyland with the Pittsburgh Pirates and Tony La Russa with the Oakland A's and the reason why I admire them is because they are really strong egos and personalities. It takes a very strong minded person to be able to do this and they make it look easy.

How has today's game changed when you played and what is your best piece of advice you would give to players or managers starting out?

If you were starting out your career without a doubt, coaching. When I would have probably been involved in weight training more in the off season. It wasn't very prominent when I was playing and I think that was probably the reason why my arm broke and halted my career. Coaching today is just totally different. It is attention to detail, managing the skills, teaching the game. Managers and players have to continue to strengthen their weaknesses and attention to detail.

Bill Arce - MLB Coordinator

What do you think that Great Britain should concentrate on to ensure that baseball continues to grow in popularity?

In my opinion, Great Britain needs to spend a tremendous amount of attention at the youth level, school and youth programs and to do so means that they have to devote coaching at that level. By far the biggest is in the hands of the kids. You only have to mould them and develop them not only skill wise but also in a mental approach to the game. The that comes with the game but also more importantly the satisfaction that comes with working hard to improve and play it to the best of your ability.

Which players have you been involved with have been your favourite players to work with?

A very difficult question to answer and I'm going to limit it to one person and that person is Ozzie Smith. He was with the US All-Star team that I was one of the coaches for and I grew to admire him both on and off the field as we travelled in Korea and Taiwan to play in tournaments. He is a real fine gentleman no question in his devotion to baseball and more important his devotion to playing to the best of his ability. He is hitting at the major league level as well or better than he did in college which is a real tribute to Ozzie Smith. He had to do what all players have to do and that is work on his weakness. He is an outstanding elder, people knew that, and I think Jim Leyland with the Pittsburgh Pirates and Tony La Russa with the Oakland A's and the reason why I admire them is because they are really strong egos and personalities. It takes a very strong minded person to be able to do this and they make it look easy.

How has today's game changed when you played and what is your best piece of advice you would give to players or managers starting out?

If you were starting out your career without a doubt, coaching. When I would have probably been involved in weight training more in the off season. It wasn't very prominent when I was playing and I think that was probably the reason why my arm broke and halted my career. Coaching today is just totally different. It is attention to detail, managing the skills, teaching the game. Managers and players have to continue to strengthen their weaknesses and attention to detail.

however there are some pretty good ball players here who could be a lot better. When your not raised in a baseball culture it is very difficult to pick it up. Some of them have done an amazing job of doing so. The obvious thing to is that it is hard to teach everything that needs to be taught in baseball. We forget in the United States how much we learn just from imitating a good player who grows up across the street from us or we imitate our favourite pro.

If you were starting out your career again what would you do different?

Not a thing.

Dave Duncan

Oakland A's Pitching Coach

Who have been your favourite players to work with?

As a player I had the opportunity to catch guys like Catfish Hunter, Vida Blue, Jim Palmer, Gaylord Perry that had great careers. As a coach, I've had the opportunity to coach Gaylord Perry when he won his three hundredth game and that was very exciting. Dave Stewart, Bobby Welch through very successful periods of their career and Dennis Eckersley.

Who is the most difficult pitcher you have had to coach both temperamentally and pitching wise?

With regards to handling, Blue Moon Odom who pitched for the A's organisation back in the 60's. He was hard to handle because he had so much movement on the ball. He threw very hard, and just had real erratic movement on the ball and it was hard to catch. Temperamentally, Doyle Alexander, I had him in Baltimore and it was very frustrating because we could never get on the same wavelength. He was a very good pitcher but I never seemed to match up with him.

What is Tony La Russa like to work with?

I am very fortunate to be associated with him. I think he is probably the best manager in the game and the reason he is the best is that he is so well prepared. He utilises all of his personnel not just his players but his staff. He delegates responsibility to us and let's us handle our parts of the game and makes us accountable for them. He let's us participate in decision making as far as personnel changes on the team and our opinion's are valuable. The unique quality about him is that he is one of the few people I have run across in the game of baseball that does not seem to have a day where it is not working for him. He is always mentally on top of the game.

What made you take up catching?

I caught from the time I was in the littlest league there was to play, I never played in another position.

What is the best piece of advice you would give to players or managers starting out?

Enjoy the game, have fun and work hard. If you don't have fun it is like any job you get involved with it becomes work.

What is it like having to deal with some of the egos on the team?

Some guys are a bit of a problem. I have been fortunate in that the pitchers I've had to work with have not been a problem. Contrary to what the public believe that all of these guys who are making a whole bunch of money suddenly develop an attitude, most of the guys just want to be as good as they can be and the money is just a by product.

What have been the high points and low points of your career?

The high points were winning the championships with the team. As for Editors Note: I am pleased to hear you thought the clinic was a success. May I remind all teams that they must register an umpire and scorer this year and they must attend either an umpires or scorers clinic. If you missed out on this one then check the booking forms in this edition for when the next one is held. I personally would like to see it compulsory for attend at least one coaching clinic a year and in the case of the officials if they fail to do so then they are not BBF accredited and therefore can not claim game fees. I would be interested to hear peoples views on that one.

an experienced player/coach could go away knowing he had learnt something.

I would like to end by thanking all the clinicians involved, especially Joe Maddon, who I feel was the most comprehensive clinician we have had to date. I would also like to thank the BBF Organisers without whom this clinic would not have been a success.

If next years clinic is half as informative then you can't afford to miss it.

Dear Kevin

I would like to thank the BBF for setting up the recent Umpires Clinic in the South, held on the 28th and 29th January 1995.

In particular I think Ted Thesingh deserves a big thank you as I for one, found the weekend enjoyable and very, very informative. Ted's task was not an easy one, finding his audience to be some very experienced players, some less experienced, some knowing virtually nothing about the game and a couple of League umpires thrown in for good measure. I can honestly say I was never bored and left the clinic with a feeling of achieving some measure of success in so far as my knowledge of the game is concerned.

would like to see these clinics held several times a year, however I think that attendees should be split into three different classes:

1. New persons to the game who wish to become umpires
2. Umpire managers, coaches and umpires
3. Umpire league umpires

I would allow the instructor to present his lecture and would not, as he did, baffle the newcomers when more experienced attendees had complicated questions.

There were in fact only TWO official umpires at the clinic - so where were the others? Perhaps they think they know

Dear Kevin

After attending the two previous MLB/BBF Coaching Clinics at Bushey, I must admit I was a little sceptical going to the third.

The 1995 Coaching Clinic was held at Cranfield University, nr Milton Keynes and I think I can speak for the majority there when I say it was the best yet. The speakers, Bill Arce, Dave Duncan, Joe Maddon and Herm Schneider were able to break the game down to a level where a complete novice could understand but there was enough information so that

Frank Parker

Dear Kevin

Just a quick note to congratulate the BBF on the recent clinic held at the new venue of Cranfield University.

Once again MLBI sent over an excellent team of clinicians, who gave concise and informative talks, none more than the talk given by Herm Schneider on the rehabilitation of Bo Jackson before and after his hip replacement operation. I don't think there was a person in the room who witnessed this tale who wasn't in awe of the things Bo had done.

I would also like to make comment about the new venue, because I feel a lot of people didn't attend this clinic because of the st!?!? it was held in for the previous two years. The best way for me to compare Cranfield to Bushey would be to say it was like chalk and cheese. The accommodation and food was superb and the dinner on the Saturday night was a big success. After Bushey, I can understand people not wanting to pay out money for something they didn't think is worthwhile, but I would strongly suggest that they back the BBF and give this new venue a chance.

1995 SCORERS CLINICS REGISTRATION FORM

The objective of the clinics is to establish the skills of new scorers and refine those skills which the experienced scorer may already possess. Individuals attending the clinic should have a basic knowledge of the rules of the game, as well as the willingness to learn and build on the information and techniques taught in both a classroom and practical environment.

Please read the article "What is Scoring About and Where is it Going?" in the December edition of Brit-Ball. Let us know your comments, and try to attend one of the clinics to be held pre-season.

Each BBF registered team MUST send someone on one of these courses. Courses are to be held as follows:

NORTH	Saturday 18 March 1995	12 noon - 4.30pm
	John Smeaton Sports Centre, Smeaton Approach Barwick Road, Leeds
MIDLANDS	Saturday 25 March 1995	12 noon - 4.30pm

1995 UMPIRES CLINIC REGISTRATION FORM

The objective of the clinics is to refine those skills which the prospective umpire may already possess. It is not designed to teach the rules of baseball to umpires. Individuals attending the clinic should have a basic knowledge of the rules of the game, as well as the willingness to learn and build on the information and techniques taught in both a classroom and practical environment.

The roles and responsibilities of the umpire (both plate and field) will be addressed at length. Many of the basic rules and situations will be covered. Each BBF registered team MUST send someone on one of these courses.

Dates for the above are as follows:

NORTH	-	25 - 26 March 1995	MIDLANDS	-	25-26 February 1995
		Menwith Hill Station			BBF Indoor Training Centre
		Harrogate			Aston
					Birmingham
SCOTLAND	-	11 - 12 March 1995
